That Evil Block

IN RECENT WEEKS there has been quite a little newspaper space—some of it rated high as editorial leadership—which seeks to discredit that evil known as "block" voting among the people of the South.

It has been easy to recognize that this evil element of block voters is inevitably that group who vote in rather solid phalanx against issues espoused by those who protest.

Somebody has uttered the truism: "In unity there is strength." Most right-thinking leaders plead for harmony and unity of action for the common good, yet when unity happens to be on the opposing side of a dividing issue—patronage, profit, praise, or whatever the prize sought after—those who walk together against us are an evil "block."

It is rather difficult to accept the logic that a people or section can be best served by a division of forces. The man on the fence has no right to expect grass from the pasture on either side of that fence.

Accepting the word "block" to refer to a group in action—well, we don't see anything wrong about it.

Big "D" and Little "d"

NOW IS THE TIME when quibblers are splitting hairs over the definition of democracy. It has gone so far that it is declared that a person may vote the Republican ticket and still call himself a Democrat.

But that is an attempted travesty upon the interpretation of the word. Let it be admitted that "democracy" is a principal, and is spelled with a little "d." Then bear in mind that faith without words is dead, and it brings to you the truth that an active, living, breathing democracy spells itself with a big "D." This big "D" is the little "d" put into action. The word that actually counts is that which signifies a living, active power. The silent significance of democracy can only operate when it goes into action. That is what the Democratic party is for—to carry into operation the principles for which the individual Democrat stands.

This much has been said in the report of an argument presented before a group of prospective bolting voters in a Savannah audience on a recent evening by a representative of the Republican party organization. Quoted, that speaker declared "that the Dewey-Warren chaps now spinning up over Georgia, the first of which was organized in Savannah a week ago, are not Republican clubs." This in the face of the fact that Dewey-Warren constitute the Republican leadership and that a voter cannot follow their lead without thereby becoming a living, breathing, voting adherent of the Republican party. Don't let this truth escape your reasoning.

Now, these have been unusual times, what with the Democratic party to which the South has so long been loyal, and from which it has received its best national co-operation, having embraced some attitudes highly objectionable to the Southern Democracy. Yet, where is there a place to which those of us who are displeased can sensibly find a more satisfactory environment? What is it that our Democratic leadership has now done that has not long ago been done habitually by the Republican leadership? What reasonable choice is there offered us by the Republican party?

The question is which of the two open avenues is the least offensive—loyalty to the Democratic party or a desertion to the Republican party? Bear this in mind—the vote is what counts; a real democrat will vote the Democratic ticket. No Democrat can vote for the Republican nominees and retain his loyalty to the principles of democracy. We are happy that an opening has been made which permits loyal Georgia democrats to vote the Democratic ticket.

Earth's Creation
A Mere Accident?

We get sort of peeved sometime when we are brought face to face with that element of scientific intelligence which denies the existence of a supreme intelligent Being. Those are the scientists who reason that back of all creation there was no organized thought, and that nature has come from endless processions of accidents. They are the intelligent element of God's creation who seek to nullify the mystery of a creation which is entirely (and wisely) beyond the understanding of men—and will so remain.

"The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God."

Now this brings us down to a reproduction of writing by Robert L. Cushman which has come to us in a religious publication of national thought limited, circulation. This writing makes the bold declaration "There is a God," and proceeds to multiply the indisputable reasonableness of that declaration:

"Suppose you take ten pennies and mark them from 1 to 10. Put them in your pocket and give them a good shake. Now try to draw them out in the sequence from 1 to 10, putting each coin back in your pocket after each draw.

Your chance of drawing No. 1 is 1 to 10. Your chance of drawing 1 and 2 in succession would be 1 in 100. Your chance of drawing 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 in succession would be one in 10 billion. A Cressy Morrison, in 'Man Does Not Stand Alone,' page 13.

It is cited to show that since there are so many exacting conditions for life on earth, and so much precision mathematics for the operation of the stellar bodies, all creation could not be mere chance. When there is only one chance in ten billion of drawing ten coins out of your pocket in succession, there must be an intelligent, all-powerful Person who controls, guides and directs human affairs. 'Man' is not a mere accident that there is a God.'—Hebrews 11:6, Weymouth.

Man, in making the aperture of a camera, has copied the principles of the pupil of the eye. But man does not have it copied in his mind, cells, nerves, and muscles such as make the eye pupil such sensitive apparatus. Man has also copied the retina of the eye in the photographic plate or film. No thinking person would hold a roll of film in his hand, claim that it came about as a result of a series of "automatic processes," that it merely happened. He would know that there must be intelligent thought and action in order to manufacture a roll of film. Similarly, a thinking person cannot say that the retina of the eye, which is many times more sensitive than a roll of photographic film, "merely happened."

As we think of other wonders of the human body we can only exclaim: "There is a God!" The body inner ear has 24,000 sound receiving filaments. A concert piano has but 240 strings.—See Fritz Khan, 'Man in Structure and Function,' pages 515-531.

Think of man's brain. It is estimated, says Mr. Khan, that it contains about fifteen billion cells to help us think and act. Imagine that we can hardly comprehend what one billion is. "A billion dollar bill laid end to end would encircle the earth nearly four times. A propeller on a pursuit plane would turn a billion times if the plane would cruise continuously (twenty-four hours a day) for nearly two years."—"Coronet," October, 1947, page 29. Now think of fifteen billion brain cells!

Feel the pulse of your wrist, and you, too, will exclaim: "There is a God!" Every minute the heart does work equivalent to tossing a one-pound weight seventy-five feet into the air. Occasionally, in short spurts, it may do six times as much, making it a one-seventieth-horsepower motor.—See H. Newell Martin, 'The Human Body,' 12th ed., p. 382.

Who sees to it that the sun does not suddenly increase its temperature and burn the earth, or who controls the sun so that it does not suddenly lose its heat and permit the earth to freeze? "If the sun were burning coal to produce heat, it would consume a layer sixteen feet thick over its entire surface every single hour."—H. M. Richards, 'The Stars Talk,' page 28. "Man... must believe that there is a God."

However, it is one thing to acknowledge that God exists from the weight of mathematical or scientific evidence, and quite another to love to serve God. It is one thing to be astounded at His power, but quite another to surrender completely to His will.

Whoever that there is a God, may we never slight His mercy or spurn His love. Let us come to Him in faith, seeking to do His bidding.

CITY FOLKS THINK
FARM PEOPLE RICH

The Real Truth Is That Costs of Production Have Climbed Above Income

Macon, Aug. 16.—"Many city folks tend to picture the farmer nowadays as a fellow with bumper income and few production worries," according to H. L. Wingate, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation. The Georgia farm leader noted that "an entirely different picture is given in a report just issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which shows that farmers' income has been somewhat greater while at the same time production costs have increased more than the gross income."

Cost of hired labor, he added, so far this year has jumped more than five per cent above 1947, "and this," the GFBF executive added, "is not given any consideration in figuring parity on farm commodities." Farm machinery, building materials, fertilizer and other supplies have shown a gradual but steady climb.

The net result, according to Mr. Wingate, is that farmers' net income so far this year will fall below last year, even though cash receipts are higher.

The Georgia Farm Bureau Federation, the president states, is endeavoring to contribute to the welfare of all groups by securing the enactment of legislation that will insure a fair price for farm commodities. The organization is likewise interested in defeating measures designed to reduce parity prices or to lower the support price to a point where the farmer faces disastrous conditions when his products reach the market place.

In this connection, Mr. Wingate pointed to the activity of the organization in opposing the Aiken so-called long-range farm bill. This measure, he says, when in full effect will cost Georgia farmers "a minimum of 100 million dollars annually, and that means a bankrupt agriculture."

To be specific, the Farm Bureau leader said the new program, effective January 1, 1950, will lower parity on cotton from approximately 31 cents per pound to 24 cents. With the support price as low as 60 per cent of parity, "it means the cotton farmer may sell his commodity for 14.40 cents."

Peanuts, which is a major crop in Georgia, can sell as low as $108 per cent, compared to more than $215 for the 1948 production.

"The Aiken bill," Mr. Wingate added, "must be amended if we are to have a sound agricultural program, and I know of no better way to insure a change in this measure than a strengthened Farm Bureau in every county in Georgia."

Talented and attractive feminine of arctic aerial and trained animal exhibitions glamorize the two hour thrill-packed program of Dales Bros. Circus.

Glamour girls, charming and attractive, abound in the personnel of Dales Bros. circus which is coming to Statesboro on October 13 for two performances—afternoon and night—at the Jones avenue west circus grounds.

In recent years, feminine beauty standards have been decidedly improved in the better circuses, a movement in which Dales Bros. are the leaders. But beauty alone is not sufficient. Comeliness of face and figure, essential as they are, must be accompanied by skill and daring, as will be demonstrated in the Dales Bros. performance.
